Members of the Advisory Board:

Ray Bartoszek

Mr. Bartoszek has over 25 years of business experience working in successive positions in engineering, analysis, economics, and trading. After working for 5 years as a construction engineer at General Dynamics, Electric Boat Division, he joined Texaco in 1991 as an international business analyst and served in various office locations including New York, London and Houston. In 1997 he joined Glencore Ltd as a fuel oil trader. With Glencore he has gained substantial experience in all aspects of trading physical oil, natural gas, and derivatives.

In 2004, Mr. Bartoszek took over responsibility for all of Glencore Ltd's Oil trading activities including Crude Oil, Fuel Oil, Middle Distillates, Gasoline, LPG, Natural Gas, Derivatives, and Shipping. In February 2010, he was named a non-executive member of the Board of Directors of Chemoil Corporation, a leading worldwide supplier of marine fuels.

In January 2011, Mr. Bartoszek retired from his daily responsibilities at Glencore Ltd to pursue other interests. He does however continue to work with the firm in a consulting capacity.

On September 16, 2011, Mr. Bartoszek was confirmed as a limited partner of the New York Yankees Baseball Club.

Mr. Bartoszek has Bachelor Degrees in Marine Engineering and Marine Transportation from the United States Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, NY, and has a Master of Business Administration from Rensallear Polytechnic Institute, Troy NY.

Mr. Bartoszek is married, has 4 children and resides in Greenwich, CT.

General George A. Joulwan

General Joulwan graduated from West Point in 1961 and from the Infantry Basic Course, Armored Career Course, Command and General Staff and the War Colleges. He received a Master's Degree in Political Science and was a member of the faculty at Loyola University in Chicago.

During two combat tours in Vietnam, General Joulwan served as Infantry Company Commander and Battalion and Brigade Operations Officer with the 1st Infantry Division and 101st Airborne Division. He served in the Pentagon as the Executive Assistant for the Vice Chief of Staff of the Army, Director of Requirements for the Army, and as Executive Officer for the Chairman, JCS. In the White House, he was Special Assistant to the President of the United States. From 1974 to 1975, he was Special Assistant to the Supreme Allied Commander Europe.

General Joulwan has served 18 years in Europe, including 14 years in Germany. He was the first Supreme Allied Commander Europe to command at every level in the Alliance, from platoon, company, battalion, brigade, division, corps and Supreme Commander. Perhaps most notably, General Joulwan was a Second Lieutenant in Germany during the building of the Berlin Wall and was a Lieutenant General in command of V Corps in the Fulda Gap when the Berlin Wall and Iron Curtain were torn down. The General also served as the Commander-in-Chief of US forces in Central and South America.

General Joulwan's final assignments were as Commander-in-Chief, United States European Command (CINCEUR), and as the 11th Supreme Allied Commander in Europe. As CINCEUR, he conducted over 20 successful operations in the Balkans, Africa, and the Middle East without one hostile death casualty. The General established the first-ever strategic policy for U.S. military engagement in Africa, and orchestrated the State Partnership Program, linking American Reserve Forces from 23 states with former non-NATO countries and newly independent democracies of Europe and the former Soviet Union.

Robert J. McGuire, ESQ.

Robert J. McGuire is the former New York City Police Commissioner, former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Pinkerton's Inc., and former President of Kroll Associates, Inc., an international corporate investigations and security consulting firm.

Mr. McGuire is a lawyer with a broad range of governmental and private sector experience. As an Assistant United States Attorney from 1962 through 1966, he prosecuted criminal cases in the Southern District of New York. In 1969 he established his own law firm of McGuire and Lawler, which specialized in white collar investigations. Mr. McGuire worked at this firm until his appointment as the New York City Police Commissioner. He served as Police Commissioner from January 1978 to December 1983. At 41 years of age, Mr. McGuire became the youngest Police Commissioner in the City's history.

Mr. McGuire was appointed Special Master by the New York County District Attorney to oversee the Gambino family's exit from the garment industry. He presently serves as the Monitor for all Bovis Lend Lease construction projects in New York City.

Mr. McGuire has served on numerous Boards and Commissions, including the President's Advisory Council of Executive Reorganization (the Ashe Committee); the Secretary of State's Advisory Panel on Overseas Security (Inman Committee); the New York State and City Commission on Government Integrity (the Sovern Commission); the New State Commission of Judicial Nomination; the conflicts of Interest Board for the City of New York; the Mayoral Task Force on Police/ Community Relations; the Lawyer's Departmental Disciplinary Committee on the Representation of the Poor. McGuire was appointed by Mayor Bloomberg to Chair the 2002 New York City Charter Revision Commission. He is presently the Vice Chairman of the Police Athletic League (New York City's largest youth organization) and also serves the boards of Mutual of America and Artio Global Investment Funds, Inc., Mr. McGuire formerly served on the boards and the audit committees of Six Flags, Inc., and Protection One, Inc.

Mr. McGuire attended Iona College (B.A. Magna Cum Laude) and Saint John's University Law School (J.D. Cum Laude), where he was Editor-in-Chief of the Law Review, and also received an LL.M. from New York University Law School under a Ford Foundation Fellowship.

He has been the recipient for numerous awards, honors and degrees from civic, governmental and educational institutions.

Harvey W. Schiller, Ph.D.

Harvey W. Schiller, Ph.D., is Chairman of the Board and CEO of GlobalOptions Group, a multidisciplinary international risk management and business solutions company, and also serves as Vice Chairman of Diversified Search, one of the nation's top executive search firms. Schiller came to GlobalOptions from a position as Chairman of Assante U.S., a leading provider of financial and life management products. Prior to joining Assante, Schiller served as Chairman and CEO of YankeeNets, an integrated sports-based media company with ownership of the New York Yankees, New Jersey Nets, and New Jersey Devils. Until December, 1999 Dr. Schiller was president of Turner Sports, Inc.

Before joining Turner in 1994, Schiller served as Executive Director/Secretary General of the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) after serving as Commissioner of the Southeastern Conference. As a pilot in the U.S. Air Force (USAF) from 1962-86, Schiller saw combat service in Vietnam, and attained the rank of Brigadier General. In 1980, the President of the United States appointed Schiller as a Permanent Professor at the U.S. Air Force Academy. He is a recipient of several military awards including the Legion of Merit and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Schiller earned his bachelor's degree from The Citadel and his doctorate from the University of Michigan.

He served as Vice Chair of the New York City Host Committee of the 2004 Republican National Convention, is a member of the Board of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, and was recently appointed to the IOC Women and Sport Commission.

Schiller and his wife Marcia reside in New York City and South Carolina.

Robert C. Shaler, Ph.D.

In August 2010 Robert Shaler, professor of biochemistry and molecular biology, retired after having served as the founding director of the Penn State Forensic Science Program since 2005. Shaler is well known for supervising the massive DNA-testing effort to identify thousands of victims of the 9/11 World Trade Center attacks, and he is the author of Who They Were: Inside the WorldTrade Center DNA Story: The Unprecedented Effort to Identify the Missing (2005.)

Throughout his career, Mr. Shaler has made many important research contributions to the field of forensic science. In 2010, he worked with Penn State colleague Ahklesh Lakhtakia to create an innovative process to reveal hard-to-detect fingerprints on nonporous surfaces. Early in his career, he conducted a study on bloodstain evidence that led to the development of a bloodstain-analysis system that was used as the standard in forensic laboratories until the early 1990s.

In addition to teaching and doing research, Mr. Shaler has served as a forensic-science consultant for government agencies and professional organizations. He was a member of the American Bar Association Task Force on Biological Evidence and was an author of a 2009 National Research Council (NRC) report, "Strengthening the Forensic Sciences -- A Path Forward," published by the National Academy of Sciences.

His other professional activities have included serving on the editorial review board of the American Journal of Forensic Pathology and Medicine and as an invited reviewer for the New England Journal of Medicine. He was a member and the chair of the New York State Crime Laboratory Advisory Committee, and he also has been an expert guest commentator for Court TV.

Prior to his work at Penn State, Mr. Shaler was an adjunct associate professor of pathology and forensic medicine at the New York University School of Medicine from 1978 to 2005 and an adjunct professor and adjunct associate professor at the City University of New York from 1993 to 1995. From 1990 to 2005, he was Director of the Department of Forensic Biology at the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner in New York City, where he performed and directed forensic biological analyses for all homicide investigations until 2005. From 1987 to 1989, he was Director of Forensic-Science Technical Support, Training, and Business Development at Lifecodes Corporation in New York -- the nation's first forensic-DNA laboratory. In addition, Mr. Shaler served as Director of Serology at the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner in New York City from 1978 to 1986, and Director of Forensic Science at the Aerospace Corporation in Washington, DC, in 1977 and 1978. He worked as a criminalist at the Pittsburgh and Allegheny County Crime Lab from 1970 to 1975, and was a research director there in 1974 and 1975. Mr. Shaler held several positions at the University of Pittsburgh, where he was an instructor of forensic chemistry and a research assistant professor of chemistry from 1974 to 1977, a clinical assistant professor from 1973 to 1975, and an assistant professor of medicinal chemistry in the School of Pharmacy from 1970 to 1973.

Mr. Shaler earned his master's and doctoral degrees in biochemistry at Penn State in 1966 and 1968, respectively. In 2003, he received an honorary doctoral degree from the State University of New York at Stony Brook. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the New York Academy of Science, the Northeast Association of Forensic Scientists, and the New Jersey Association of Forensic Scientists.

Gene Washington

Gene Washington presently serves as a member of the Board of Directors of Goodrich Petroleum Company, AutoReturn, Delia's, GP Strategies, and Beacon House.

Mr. Washington's began his career as a player for the San Francisco Forty Niners (1969 to 1977) and then the Detroit Lions (1978 to 1979.) Since then, he has continued to be influential in the world of sports.

Following his profession as a football player, he served as a Football Commentator and Show Host on NBC Sports New York and KPIX-TV San Francisco, respectively. During the late 1980s, Mr. Washington was a Sports Reporter at KABC-TV Los Angeles. He then worked at KPIX-TV San Francisco and KNBR San Francisco as a Sports Reporter and Show Host. Mr. Washington was the Assistant Athletic Director at Stanford University for two years (1992 to 1994) before becoming the Director of Football Operations for the National Football League (1994 to 2009.)

In addition to career in sports, Mr. Washington has served as a member of the Board of Directors for numerous business and civic organizations, including the New York Bancorp Inc.; the Hospital for Special Surgery (New York); the National Football Foundation / College Hall of Fame; the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art; the American Football Coaches Foundation; Redcor Corp. (Hambrect & Quist, Electronics Co.); First Enterprise Bank (Oakland, CA); the Golden Gate National Recreation Area; the Harlem School of Arts; Touchstone; New Generation; and the National Park Foundation. He was also a member of the Advisory Council for the California State Food and Nutrition and the Chairman of the Special Olympics (San Francisco Bay Area.) He has been a member of several social organizations, including San Francisco's The Bohemian Club and the Olympic Club and The Los Angeles Country Club.

Mr. Washington graduated from Stanford University in 1969 where he earned a bachelor's degree in Sociology.